Former Casey resident arrested on murder charge

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

A former Casey County resident has been arrested in Campbellsville on charges that he killed his great-grandmother with a hammer. Jesse James Durham, 20, of 102 Eads St., Campbellsville, formerly of 2700 Bryant Ridge Road, Liberty, was arrested on Feb. 12 and charged with murdering 77-year-old Elizabeth Arinsmier, of 105 Daisy Drive, also in Campbellsville. Durham was released on probation from the Jessamine County Detention Center on Dec. 1 of last year after having spent less than 18 months in jail as a Level 1 non-violent offender.

Durham was indicted by a Casey County grand jury on Aug. 23, 2010 for first-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking, over $500.

He admitted to taking six guns from Danny Bryant's home on Bryant Ridge Road in Liberty two months earlier on June 14.

Acting upon the recommendation of Casey County

Commonwealth's Attorney Brian Wright, Special Judge James Bowling sentenced Durham to seven-and-one-half years in jail on Feb. 14, 2011.

A motion for shock probation, filed by Public Defender Shelby Horn in Casey Circuit Court on Aug. 8, was opposed by Wright and subsequently denied by Casey Circuit Judge James G. Weddle.

"The court is of the opinion that imprisonment is necessary for the protection of the public because probation, probation with an alternative sentencing plan, or conditional discharge would unduly depreciate the seriousness of the defendant's crime," court records state.

Concerning the murder charge in Taylor County, court records show that Durham admitted to police that he argued with his great-grandmother at her home and then struck her with a hammer until she died.

Authorities discovered Arinsmier's body on Feb. 11 after receiving a call from her son, Matt Blaine, of Cincinnati, saying that he hadn't heard from his mother in several days.

After arriving at her home and getting no answer, officers entered the home and found Arinsmier unresponsive.

An autopsy report from the state medical examiner's office in Louisville stated that Arinsmier died as a result of blunt force trauma.

Originally charged with murder, the charge has been amended to capital murder, Taylor County Circuit Court records state.

Durham's case is scheduled to go before a Taylor County grand jury on March 6. He is currently being held in the Taylor County Detention Center on $500,000 cash bond.

If a penny is .75 inches in diameter, how many would it take to lay out a quarter of a mile?

Liberty Elementary School students from K-6 learned the answer to that question and a lot more about pennies and money during a special event on Thursday at the school.

The event, "A Quarter Mile of Pennies," was a collaborative effort between Monticello Banking Company personnel and teachers at LES.

MBC President Stacey Beeler said that LES curriculum coach Betty Wesley contacted her about the possibility of a week-long math with money project.

Casey man perishes in fire

Marrapodi was a 2007 CCHS graduate

By Todd Kleffman
The Advocate-Messenger

A Casey County man died late Friday night during a fire at a trailer in Adair County.

According to Kentucky State Police,

Richard Marrapodi, 23, was discovered dead inside the residence at 8601 Knifely Road after firefighters responded to a call of flames coming from the trailer at 11:11 p.m. Friday.

When firefighters arrived, flames were visible inside the structure, said Kim Farmer, a member of the Knifely Volunteer Fire Department, which responded to the call. Firefighters made entry and found Marrapodi's body as they were trying to put out the blaze, which was contained to one room inside the trailer, Farmer said.

Marrapodi, a 2007 Casey County High School graduate and football player, was pronounced dead at the scene by the Adair County Coroner. His body was taken to Louisville for an autopsy and results are pending, KSP said in a press release.

The cause of the fire has not been determined. Foul play is not suspected, but an investigation by KSP Detective Jamie Richard and Arson Investigator Alex Wesley is continuing.

Fiscal court gives first reading to synthetic drug ordinance

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

Magistrates took a first step toward making it illegal to possess or sell synthetic marijuana.

Casey County Fiscal Court heard the first reading on Monday of an ordinance designed to stop the sale and possession of synthetic drugs in the county.

Entitled an "Ordinance prohibiting the possession or sale of AM cannabinoids, CP cannabinoids, JWH cannabinoids and HU cannabinoids," it lists over a hundred chemical variations used by manufacturers to get around laws written against individual drugs.

According to the ordinance, these substances — herbal incense products that give a marijuana like high — are harmful if consumed and present a significant public health danger that can result in hospitalization or death.

Makers of these marijuana-like pills simply change the chemistry a little bit to create new drugs that are not covered by existing regulation.

The ordinance is designed to cover these drugs not already covered by state law.

State law includes three Kentucky Revised Statutes that prohibit manufacturing, possessing and trafficking in "synthetic cannabinoid agonists or piperazines," but state laws do not cover every product on the market.

"It's like anything else, every time you take care of something by law, somebody comes up with something different," said County Attorney Tom Weddle.

Weddle told magistrates that these are very dangerous drugs that are being sold legally.

"The side effects of these drugs can result anywhere from serious physical injury to death so it is a public health problem," Weddle said.

"Anything we can do to keep young people off drugs, especially new forms of drugs, we need to do that," Weddle said.

The second reading of the ordinance 12-000-04 to ban the possession or sale of synthetic drugs will be on March 5 at 5 p.m. during the fiscal court meeting at the Casey County Courthouse.

In other business, the court:

■ Adopted an order of affiliation which establishes responsibilities and chain of command between Casey County Fiscal Court, Casey County Emergency Management, and the Liberty/Casey County Rescue Squad in the provision of the rescue squad services.

The order also defines that all assets of the rescue squad belong to fiscal court. However, when state funds are used to purchase equipment, the equipment becomes the property of the state.

■ Reappointed Algie Atwood to a four-year term on the Casey County Ambulance Service Board.

■ Approved County Treasurer Debbie Vaughn's monthly financial report showing the following balances: General Fund, $439,199.43; Road Fund, $488,582.26; Jail Fund, $622,223.30; LGEA, $76,946.11; State, $51,658.33; E-911, $28,578.81.

■ Approved the following fund transfers: $43,787.56 from the General Fund to Sheriff Incentive, $3,787.56; Jail Annex, $25,000; Judicial Guards, $5,000; and Renewals and Repairs, $10,000.

Also, $10,500 was transferred from the Road Fund to Contracted Construction, $6,200; Plastic Tiles, $750; Signs, $2,800; Renewals and Repairs, $500; and Miscellaneous, $250. $8,500 was reserved for transfer to Linens, $5,000; Renewals and Repairs, $1,500; Staff Training, $1,000, and Juvenile Detention, $1,000.

Development issue is win-win

By Arlen Sanders

Why is a welcome center an asset to a community?

One of the largest industries in Kentucky is tourism. Billions of dollars are invested in the travel industry each year, which is tourism. When someone visits a community they usually spend money on eats, fuel, shopping items, and entertainment. Liberty and Casey County sit in a great location to take advantage of travelers and visitors that come to our county and the surrounding communities.

A good example is the South Fork area. You cannot say that we are too remote to have visitors come. Agritourism is developing in our area. "Kentucky Farms are Fun," the state's effort to showcase the importance and educational value of American farm life, is beginning to bring visitors. Casey has a great reputation for raw food production throughout the area. In the spring, travel the South Fork area, go to the ag/expo center during an event and look at the different counties and states represented.

How can We better serve these visitors that spend their dollars with our local businesses and how do we entice more visitors to come? We need to promote these businesses with different communication channels. One aspect that is needed is a local location for information transfer. Where can I shop for jeans? Where is a farm that we can visit? Where can I walk a trail? What's going on at the ag/expo center? When is the next motocross race? Where is the truck pull being held? These questions and more about local businesses of all types are asked.

The primary avenue for answering such inquiries as these would be a local welcome center located on our major highway, U.S. 127. A few years ago we applied for a grant from the Transportation Enhancement fund and was successful in obtaining that grant to be utilized for beginning construction of a welcome center. We were also successful in obtaining the property known as the roadside park from the Kentucky Department of Transportation when it was deemed surplus. No funds were involved with this transfer to the City of Liberty. The purpose for obtaining the property was for a welcome center. The project was placed on hold by the city due to other priorities.

We are currently at the point where an adjacent land owner and developer has asked the city for permission to develop an access point directly across from the connector road to Ky. 70 from U.S. 127.

After discussion with the land owner, we feel this action to build the road at the location requested will be very important for the development project and will enhance the development of the welcome center. The land owner has agreed to assist with the welcome center project and to allow parking spaces on his property to be used by visitors at the center.

All in all, this would be a win-win endeavor with both projects to increase economic development in our community.

Efforts under way for historical marker

Efforts are underway to erect a historical marker in Adair County to mark the location of the Civil War Camp Boyle and the formation of the 13th Kentucky Cavalry. This effort is being spearheaded by Chris Bennett of Columbia and donations are currently being received.

While it is easy to obtain a list of all those who served in this cavalry, I am currently soliciting photographs of the enlisted men and officers along with information as to the place of their death and burial. Several men from Casey County served in the 13th Kentucky Cavalry, USA, including my great-grandfather, John H. Patton and my great-great-grandfather, Rev. R. F. Mills, who served as Chaplain of Company B.

If any readers have pictures of ancestors or family members who served and would share them with me, please contact me at 270-789-8109 or email me at pcpatton62@yahoo.com

The cost of erecting this historical marker is $2,500. Donations may be mailed to The Adair Heritage Association, P. O. Box 963, Columbia, Ky. 42728.

Park should stay at entrance to Liberty

Watching my son, Shannon, play on the rock wall and running up and down the steps is one of my favorite memories of the roadside park.

I am so proud of my family for being a part of the rock wall because it is one of the beautiful walls that my daddy, Bobby Patton, and my uncles, Benny Patton and Melvin Emerson, laid up.

I hope the park will get to stay at the entrance to Liberty and many more people will enjoy the rock wall at the park like I did for years to come.

No matter how old I get I will always be able to look around and see lots of brick, block, rock, stone walls that my family has built. I hope that the rock wall at the park will always be there too.

Lessons from a newspaper legend

Larry
ROWELL
Staff Writer

weeks.

Burkhard almost single-handedly began putting everything together to once again make the paper the official news organ of the county.

It comes to mind that putting out a newspaper back then was much more labor intensive than it is today.

Back then, there were no computers, no digital photography and the printing was done in house.

Today we have the luxury of composing the pages on a computer and then sending them electronically to the printing plant in Elizabethtown.

When Burkhard took pictures, they were on 35mm film and had to be developed in a darkroom.

Unlike digital cameras today where pictures can be looked at on the camera's screen, a photographer had no idea until he developed the pictures if any were usable.

Burkhard had a remarkable and rare gift for photographic composition as evidenced by the photos he took.

However, it was the quality of his writing that really stands out.

Burkhard went well beyond answering the who, what, why, where and when of an article. The man could turn a phrase like no one else I have ever read.

His writing was clear, concise, and down to earth, which is all but a lost art today. He drew readers into a story by making them feel like they were there as the story unfolded.

But it's not just my praise of his ability to write well that means anything.

He was inducted into the Kentucky Journalism Hall of Fame in 1987 and that speaks volumes about what his colleagues thought of his work.

Another lesson that I've learned from this giant was his love for Casey County.

While it's evident that he told it like it was, Burkhard loved all things in the county from people to events and everything in between.

He also showed his adoration for the county by supporting civic organizations and using his fine tenor voice in churches, and at weddings and funerals.

While I will never be the writer he was, I do hope that I can at least try and be what others said Burkhard was — "a servant."

Editor's Note: Beginning this week, The Casey County News will re-publish some of Burkhard's articles and opinions from past issues. They will appear on the Out of the Past page as space allows.

Feeling 'all flushed with fever'

David B.
WHITLOCK
Guest
Columnist

I could feel the veins in my face grow suddenly warm as I imagined my cheeks glowing bright red, signaling to all that I was blushing.

It happened in the post office. Clinking shut the little door to my mail box, I whirled around to see the usual long line waiting at the counter. And there with her back turned to me was one of my parishioners. I sneaked up to her and bending my finger to form a knuckle, tapped her on the arm, mouthing a clicking sound as I did, thinking she would laugh when she saw that it was me, her pastor who was teasing her.

Only when she turned around in surprise, it wasn't my friend; it was a complete stranger.

"Oh, I am so sorry," I attempted an apology as I stepped away from her. "I...I thought you were someone else."

By now, everyone else in line had turned around, curious to see what was happening, wondering what exactly I had done to this innocent victim of my misplaced prank. I thought I noticed one lady edging closer to the counter.

I backed out of the post office, in the words of Roberta Flack, "all flushed with fever."

Later that day, right after lunch, I happened to see my friend's son-in-law downtown. I told him my story of how I had thought I had seen his mother-in-law at the post office but startled someone else. We both laughed.

Moments later, back at the office, I glanced in the mirror.

What was that on the side of my face? Oh my goodness, a splotch of brown balsamic vinaigrette salad dressing from lunch. Now I wondered if the son-in-law was laughing at my story or the brown tobacco-juice-looking stain glaring on the side of my mouth.

And again, I felt, "all flushed with fever."

That evening, I was telling my wife the story of my two faux paus.

"Did you have any appointments this afternoon?" she asked.

"Just one," I answered. "Why?"

"Because you've got mustard on the front of your shirt."

She wasn't kidding--- there it was, bright shining and yellow, between the third and fourth buttons.

It was all in a day's work: Through each awkward event I felt that rush of blood to my cheeks and a faint light-headedness.

It's called blushing, and scientists believe it's a common human reflex that developed in our evolutionary process over tens of thousands of years. It's akin to a "flight or fight" response to our nervous system, an involuntary reaction. We have a sudden rush of adrenaline, our pupils grow larger, and our digestive system slows down to allow the blood flow to be directed to our muscles.

One theory is that blushing came to signal that a social norm had been broken. Neuroscientist Mark Changizi in his book, The Vision Revolution (BenBella, 2009), claims that we developed unusually strong color vision so that we could detect subtle hue changes in other peoples' skin and could thereby deduce their emotions. His results "showed that in the context of transgressions and mishaps, blushing is a helpful bodily signal with face-saving properties. It seems therefore unwise to hide the blush or to try not to blush in these types of contexts."

In other words, blushing actually evokes sympathy and in effect disarms an otherwise threatening situation.

Ahh, so that explains that dear lady's kindness to me in the post office, "That's okay, I understand," I thought I heard her say as she beamed an empathic grin. And what's a little tobacco, I mean balsamic vinaigrette, on the side of the mouth but a cue for more sympathy? And mustard dribbled down the front of my shirt? Bring on the compassion.

Come to think of it, as I reflect on that day, I believe I was the recipient of more warm heartedness than usual.

I'm getting up extra early tomorrow to practice a little blushing. And if I can't come by it that way, I'll just wear a brown penny loafer on my left foot and a black wing tip on my right.

Casey County couple building 'reality farm'

By James Roberts
Landmark News Service

From the rice paddies of Cambodia to the squalor of Afghanistan, Geoff and Lindsey McPherson hope to open a few eyes.

The couple moved from Texas to Casey County a few years ago and started Good Life Ranch, a 160-acre self-sustainable farm located on the Taylor/Casey County line. Lindsey McPherson is a junior English teacher at Taylor County High School. Geoff McPherson is a substitute at TCHS.

"We're trying to turn this into a sustainable-type farm with very little fossil fuel use," Geoff McPherson said.

"He likes to do as much by hand as possible," Lindsey McPherson said.

However, Geoff McPherson admits that has as much to do with capital as it does with his belief structure.

The McPherson farm boasts cows, chickens, goats, pigs, turkeys, ducks and rabbits. Save for the help of summer interns, the couple does all the farm work themselves.

On part of their farm, the McPhersons are building "Lifestyles Lane," which recreates life in underdeveloped parts of the world.

The concept is modeled after Heifer International's Global Village in Arkansas, which Geoff McPherson visited a couple of times when he was in school.

Kentucky is a perfect location for Lifestyles Lane, he said, because it is located within a day's drive of Chicago, New York, Washington D.C. and several other major cities.

Intern Annalise Carington, standing on ladder, works on the Cambodian village.

Lifestyles Lane is still a work in progress and isn't expected to be open to the public until 2013.

Once complete, the McPhersons will be able to accommodate groups from 10 to 150. China, India, Peru, Sierra Leone, Kenya, South Africa, Haiti, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Cambodia, Moldova, Afghanistan, Yemen and Sudan will be represented in Lifestyles Lane.

Children and adults will experience life in those countries, including the food, day-to-day activities and living conditions. There will be a fee, but the McPhersons haven't determined what that will be just yet.

Once the experience is complete, Lindsey McPherson said, participants will have learned various facts about the country they simulated and about the affect of population expansion.

The McPhersons plan to offer one-, three- or five-day simulations.

Everything will be authentic with the exception of the restroom facilities. State law prevents them from re-creating that particular aspect of life in these countries.

"But it will still be less comfortable than [participants] are used to," Lindsey McPherson said.

The McPhersons hope to conduct a test run this summer or fall.

The end result of Lifestyles Lane is to enlighten participants.

"We want them to understand how our choices in a developed world impact developing nations," Lindsey McPherson said.

The McPhersons also want to arm participants with the knowledge to make positive changes in the world.

"We want to leave everyone not only feeling like they've learned something, but also to empower them to change the way the world lives," Geoff McPherson said.

No problems with hospital audit

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

With everything up across the board, including expenses, members of the Casey County Hospital District's Board of Directors learned on Feb. 14 that's not necessarily a bad thing.

Rodney Welch, of Welch and Co. Certified Public Accountants, told the board there were no problems with its audit of the fiscal year ending June 30, 2011.

Welch said that a figure the board should be proud of is assets in excess of debt, which stands at $5.1 million.

"This is your equity in Casey County Hospital," Welch said.

Administrator Rusty Tungate said that when he started at the hospital 16 years ago, that figure was a negative $500,000.

Total operating revenue was $16.1 million, up from $15.4 million the previous year.

Operating income for the fiscal year was $411,000, which is down $70,000 from FY10.

In other matters, the board:

—Accepted Administrator Rusty Tungate's recommendation to stay with Bluegrass Health Care for employees' health insurance.

—Charged off $15,104.18 in bad debts and charity for the hospital.

—Heard Chief Financial Officer Ralph Morgan say the hospital district had a net income of $17,456 for December. The district now has a total fund balance of $5.7 million.

Casey County Board of Health adopts tax rate

By Larry Rowell
Staff Writer

The Casey County Board of Health adopted a 4.3-cents-per-$100 tax rate and approved the 2012-2013 budget during its annual meeting on Friday.

Lake Cumberland District Health Department Executive Director Shawn Crabtree presented the Board the budget with the same tax rate as last year.

LCDHD provides administrative services to Casey and nine other health departments.

Crabtree said cuts are looming from state and federal sources.

"As far as the district goes, you are aware that over the last couple of years, we've taken about $4 million worth of budget hits between the amounts we have to put in toward retirement and the amounts we have to put in toward insurance, cuts in state and federal grant funding, and cuts in what we're able to do in some of our programs," Crabtree said.

And the proposed budget currently before the state legislature could bring a fresh round of budget cuts for LCDHD — from $600,000 to $1 million, Crabtree said.

As far as the budget cuts impacting Casey County, Crabtree said that the county won't escape losing something.

"Casey has or is going to lose some nursing, clerical, health education and environmental time. Basically, no services have been completely cut out yet, though when they are offered is being adjusted," he said.

By adopting the 4 cents tax rate, the $63,000 projected surplus funds generated from the tax rate will go into a capital fund for the new building.

The board applied for $600,000 in grant funding in 2010 but was unsuccessful in obtaining those funds. Had the grant funding been obtained, the local health department would then have applied for a $1.8 million loan to complete the building project.

The plan called for a new, 12,000-square-foot building to be constructed on a lot Lake Cumberland Area Development District owns at the corner of Whipp Avenue and Dillon Street.

Local Health Board Chairman Dr. A.F. Brown said that unless grant funding is found, plans for the new facility will remain on the drawing board.

However, the board currently has $151,026 in capital funds and should add about $60,000 more to that from surplus funds generated from next year's budget.

The budget adopted by the board calls for budgeted tax receipts of $243,046. Combined with an opening balance of $172,188, total funds available will be $415,234. Expenditures are expected to be $181,606.

The board also endorsed a "Smoke Free Kentucky Coalition" resolution which addresses the hazards of secondhand smoke.

The resolution calls for the legislature to pass a statewide law prohibiting smoking inside all work sites, including bars and restaurants.

All of the fatalities involved motor vehicles and three victims were not wearing seat belts. Single-fatality crashes occurred in Breckinridge, Floyd, Henderson, Madison and Washington counties. The crash in Henderson County involved the suspected use of alcohol.

Through Feb. 19, 2012, preliminary statistics* indicate that 77 people have lost their lives on Kentucky roadways during 2012. This is five less fatalities than reported for the same time period in 2011. There have been 69 motor vehicle fatalities and 38 of those victims were not wearing seat belts. Seven of those crashes involved a commercial motor vehicle.

Two crashes involved a motorcycle and one victim was not wearing a helmet. Two crashes involved an ATV and one victim was not wearing a helmet. Four crashes involved a pedestrian.

Thirteen deaths have resulted from crashes involving the suspected use of alcohol.

Citizens can contribute to highway safety by reporting erratic drivers to the Kentucky State Police toll-free at 1-800-222-5555. Callers will remain anonymous and should give a description of the vehicle, location, direction of travel and license number if possible.

These statistics are still preliminary as KSP waits for all local law enforcement agencies throughout the state to report any crashes and fatalities that may have occurred in their areas. Crash data for this report is generated from the Kentucky Fatality Analysis Reporting System (FARS).*

February is Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month

By Amy Oakley

Bethany House Abuse Shelter

She was 15 years old and entering her first "serious" relationship. At first, she thought everything was perfect—he was sweet and funny and wanted to spend every moment possible with her. He even switched his class schedule around so that they could have all of their classes together. Everything seemed to be going great. Until suddenly it wasn't. She started noticing things that made her nervous—whenever she spent time away from him, even if it was to be with her family, he got angry. He sent her constant text messages to check up on her and hacked into her Facebook account because he thought she was talking to other guys. He told her that her friends were stupid and she should stop talking to them. Once, after an argument, he slammed a door so hard that it cracked. He told her that if she ever broke up with him, he might kill himself. She knew she didn't want that to happen. She felt stuck in the relationship. Statistics show that one in three teenagers will experience some form of abuse from a dating partner. Some teens may not identify what they are experiencing as abuse, because often it is not physical. Dating violence almost always starts out as verbal or emotional abuse, with the abusive partner doing things to control the victim. If left unchecked, these controlling behaviors will escalate. Sometimes it will become more severe emotional abuse. Other times it will turn into physical abuse. No matter the type, dating violence should be taken seriously.

What should you do if you are in an abusive relationship? First of all, know that this is not your fault. You do not deserve to be abused or controlled by a partner. You also do not have to go through this alone. Tell someone what is going on. It can be a friend, parent, teacher, or counselor; whoever you feel the most comfortable talking to. Talking about your situation with someone you trust can help you better understand what you are going through. It can also help you to decide what you need to do.

If you do decide to end your abusive relationship, it is important to have a plan for safety. It is a good idea to end the relationship in a public place, because that will decrease the likelihood of violence. You should tell someone when and where you plan to meet with your partner. If someone knows where you will be, they can check on you to make sure that you are not in danger. It is a good idea to try not to be alone after the break-up occurs, especially if you are afraid that your partner will do something to hurt you. You can stay with a family member or friend, or you can call a shelter such as Bethany House if you think you need a more secure location to stay.

What should you do if someone you love is in an abusive relationship? The most important thing you can do for someone who is experiencing dating violence is to be supportive of them. If they want to talk about what is going on, listen without judgment. Don't ask questions like "why don't you just leave?" or defend the abuser. Help them to plan for safety and try to be understanding of whatever decisions they make.

For more information about Teen Dating Violence Awareness Month, call the National Dating Abuse Hotline at 1-866-331-9734 or find them online at loveisrespect.org.

You can also call Bethany House and speak to a trained domestic violence advocate by calling 1-800-755-2017. Both services are free and confidential.

Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are they that mourn: for they shall be comforted. Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled. Blessed are the merciful: for they shall obtain mercy. Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God. Blessed are the peacemakers: for they shall be called the children of God.

AROUND THE AREA

Farmers unhappy with water rate

ADAIR COUNTY — Area dairy and poultry farmers are upset about a double-digit hike in the price they'll pay for water.

Several farmers expressed their displeasure to board members with the Columbia-Adair County Utilities District on Feb. 9.

The Public Service Commission approved a 20-percent water rate increase that could cause some farmers to pay an additional $200 a month.

Board members pledged to see if high volume consumers could get a price break.

The large increase is due to three or four major projects such as a $4 million-plus water system replacement project in the city.

Junction City is wet

BOYLE COUNTY -- Junction City was issued liquor licenses last week, clearing the way for two package stores to open for business.

Junction City Police Chief Merl Baldwin, who is also the city's Alcoholic Beverage Control officer, received an e-mail from the distilled spirits administrator for the state ABC confirming the decision.

Licenses were granted to Antle's on Hustonville Road and Ray's Liquor Mart on Margus Drive. Both establishments can open for business as soon as their facilities are ready.

Raid in Hustonville nets drugs, booze

LINCOLN COUNTY -- The Crossroads Market on U.S. 127 in Hustonville was providing more than bread, milk, and gas to their customers. The Lincoln County Sheriff's Office conducted a raid with the Hustonville Police Department and executed a warrant to search for suspected drug dealing operations.

Lincoln County Sheriff Curt Folger and Hustonville Police Department Chief Fred McCoy had recently made an undercover drug buy of methamphetamine at the market. A search warrant was issued and a dozen county officers accompanied McCoy on a search of the market.

The search yielded alcohol, pills, and packets of a substance suspected of being cocaine. New K-9 Deputy Ingo alerted the officers to several locations in the market that were suspected to contain drugs.

Crossroads owner, Sean Abraham, 43, of Lancaster, was arrested at the scene. Abraham was charged with trafficking in a controlled substance and menacing. Folger said that Abraham had previously been suspected of drug trafficking prior to this in a Shell station he owns in Lancaster.

Store employee Georginna Carpenter, 41, of Hustonville, was also arrested and charged with trafficking, possession of cocaine and trafficking within 1,000 yards of a school.

Abraham was released on a $2,500 cash bond and will be arraigned on Feb. 27. Carpenter has already been arraigned and is being held in the Lincoln County Regional Detention Center pending a $5,000 cash bond. Carpenter had a previous drug possession conviction for cocaine possession in Boyle County in 2006.

Doggie dumper off to court

MARION COUNTY -- Christina Gribbins, 36, of Campbellsville is scheduled to appear in Marion Circuit Court. She confessed to abandoning 23 dogs on Ky. 412 in Marion County on Jan. 24. She was arrested and charged with 23 counts of second-degree cruelty to animals and was lodged in the Marion County Detention Center on a $5,000 cash bond.

Second-degree cruelty to animals is a Class A misdemeanor, and the penalty for a Class A misdemeanor is up to 12 months imprisonment and up to a $500 fine.

Gribbins is not licensed to operate an animal rescue, but she claimed to be the operator of "A New Leash Animal Rescue" and collected dogs from shelters in surrounding areas and from other rescue programs.

Marion County animal control officials said they were still investigating and waiting on paperwork to come in from surrounding shelters to determine if Gribbins was responsible for additional dog dumpings.

Burnside might be moving on up

PULASKI COUNTY -- The Burnside City Council passed a resolution stating intent to try to get reclassified from a fifth-class city to a fourth-class city.

Burnside is under the defined population limit of 3,000 for a fourth-class city in Kentucky but officials are hoping the state legislature, which as the sole power to reclassify a city, will do so as they have done in the past year with cities that don't meet the population limit.

Burnside officials have a case they can make in favor of the reclassification and that is the high transient population that passes through the city during tourist season or those who only live in Burnside during the summer months. The total population increases during certain times of the year.

Moving up to a fourth-class city would put Burnside in a favorable position with state agencies, making them eligible for more grant money opportunities and programs.

There is a little controversy, however, in that some members of the religious community are worried that Burnside has another goal in mind and that is to bring package liquor stores into the area as happened in Junction City.

Mayor Ron Jones stated that the effort to be reclassified as a fourth-class city doesn't mean that Burnside will have package alcohol sales. He pointed out that moving up in the ranks would provide additional bonding opportunities and would also prevent a larger city from taking over and absorbing them, something that could happen if they remain a fifth-class city.

"Boat tax" comes up again

RUSSELL COUNTY -- State law allows counties to collect property taxes on houseboats and other watercraft that are docked or stored locally for more than 60 days. Many on Lake Cumberland have gone untaxed up to this point.

The hotly debated "boat tax" issue was touched on again at the monthly meeting of the Russell County Fiscal Court. County Judge/Executive Gary Robertson said the issue was effectively out of the hands of local government after meeting with a representative of the state's department of revenue, William Lawson. Robertson said resolution of the issue is between the department of revenue and the local PVA office.

State Auditor Adam Edelen contacted the department of revenue several months ago about enforcing the tax around the state and revenue officials have already visited some marinas in western and northern Kentucky before focusing on Russell County marinas. Robertson said that Lawson visited several local marinas while in the area for their meeting.

Man accused of pointing gun at child

TAYLOR COUNTY — A Campbellsville man has been arrested and charged with wanton endangerment for allegedly pointing a gun at a child.

Jeremy S. Bandy, 31, of 176 Virgie Lane, was arrested on Sunday, Feb. 12.

According to court records, Campbellsville Police officer Travis Begley responded to a call reporting that Bandy had pointed a gun at a child at a residence on Bowman Street.

After arriving, court records state, Begley found two people leaving in a van.

Records state that 19 witnesses told Begley that Bandy pulled a rifle/shotgun on a juvenile and two adults. The three people identified the gun, records state.

Bandy was charged with being a convicted felon in possession of a firearm and three counts of first-degree wanton endangerment.

He pleaded not guilty to the charges in Taylor District Court on Feb. 13. Bond was set at $30,000 cash and Bandy was ordered to not have contact with the alleged victims.

Getting rid of old appliances can save consumers money

South Kentucky RECC wants its members to know that a new energy efficient appliance only saves money if you get rid of the old one.

In 2010 and 2011 many consumers got federal rebates for a new refrigerator, water heater, or other household appliance. About 1.7 million rebates were redeemed, and the U.S. Department of Energy estimates these appliances will cut $65 million from electric bills every year. Around $48 million of that chunk will be saved mainly by consumers who bought energy-efficient refrigerators, clothes washers, and dishwashers.

Great news, right? It is, if people follow the adage, "Out with the old, in with the new." But for one in five households, that's not the case. A national survey by the Co-operative Research Network, an arm of the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, found 19 percent of homes have two refrigerators; 2 percent own three or more.

The problem with keeping an old refrigerator is that you're not saving money. By sending these "energy hogs" to the basement or garage to keep sodas and popsicles cold for the kids, you increase electric bills even more.

Appliances already use 13 percent of your home's electricity, and older appliances drain even more. A refrigerator from the 1970s costs $200 more to operate every year than a current model; a 1980s fridge isn't much better, wasting $100 in energy dollars annually.

For help in making efficient energy purchases you can get in touch with South Kentucky RECC or visit www.energys-tar.gov.

2012 state legislative session reaches half way mark

We have reached the half way mark of the 2012 session and I believe the House of Representatives has much to show for our 30 days in Frankfort.

Since Jan. 3, we have been hard at work moving legislation through the committee process, working on budget issues within our subcommittees and meeting with constituents and stakeholders on issues of importance to Kentuckians.

As of Feb. 16, the House has passed 68 bills that have been sent to the Senate for their consideration. These bills impact redistricting, education, public safety, health-care, veterans and military affairs and economic development.

Bills signed into law include:

■ HB 121 which would requires any POW/MIA flag bought and/or displayed by a public institution to be made in the U.S.

■ HB 302 created a new Congressional redistricting plan.

Legislation supporting education includes HB 216 which would increase the school attendance age in Kentucky from 16 to 17 on July 1, 2016. On July 1, 2017 the compulsory attendance age would automatically be raised from 17 to 18.

■ HB 37 would establish districts of innovation that school districts could take advantage of to try new approaches in teaching students. This could include lengthening the school calendar and establishing more alternative programs that could be provided outside a normal school day.

■ HB 40 would have the Kentucky Board of Education establish a statewide evaluation system for teachers, beginning in 2014-15.

Terry MILLS
State Representative

■ HB 89 would call on one of the two parents on site-based decision making school councils to live inside the district. Also, non-tenured teachers could not serve on a council unless no tenured teacher wanted to.

■ HB 99 permits tuition waivers for foster children in high school who are taking dual enrollment classes good for college credit.

■ HB 281 requires coaches in schools to complete training on recognizing and treating concussions and head injuries and would specify when an athlete with a suspected concussion or head injury may return to play.

Public safety legislation that has passed the House includes HB 54 which would add judges and witnesses to list of people contacted upon the release or escape of an involuntarily committed person.

■ HCR 38 directs LRC to create the Task Force on Children Exposed to and Affected by Domestic Violence.

■ HCR 129 establishes a task force to study issues involving juveniles caught in the judicial system. That includes status offenses violations like truancy that wouldn't be a crime for adults and how children involved in domestic violence cases are affected. This would also include a review of those cases where children 10 and younger are charged with a crime.

■ HB 70 would restore voting rights to non-violent felons who have served their prison sentences.

Supporting our military is a priority of the House of Representatives and HB 71 would exempt probate fees from estate of anyone in Armed Forces or who is eligible for state death gratuity benefits.

■ HB 197 establishes an I Support Veterans license plate.

■ HB 221 would put a veterans designation on qualified drivers licenses.

■ HB 224 establishes the Kentucky National Guard Adoption Assistance Program. This would allow up to $5,000 in unreimbursed direct costs if the adoptee is a child with special needs and up to $3,000 for any other child. This would come from the military family assistance trust fund.

Help for Kentucky's economy can be found in several bills we've passed and sent to the Senate.

■ HB 5 requires contractors doing business with the state to use E-Verify to ensure no illegal immigrants are being employed. All public agencies would have to use E-Verify as well before hiring new employees.

■ HB 135 requires life insurance companies to do more to find beneficiaries of unclaimed life insurance policies. Policies not cashed would revert to the state as unclaimed property.

■ HJR 88 would direct the Cabinet for Economic Development study the economic potential of our rural areas and how the state can do more to help.

Other bills to help streamline processes and save money include HB 90 which requires electronic filing of election finance reports for all candidates and slates of candidates running for statewide office, beginning in 2015.

■ HB 293 would limit how special elections for vacancies in the General Assembly are conducted if only one candidate qualifies for the ballot. For example, voting might only take place in the county clerks office.

As these bills are being discussed and voted upon, we are also working on the state budget. Moderate growth is predicted and there are significant savings from overhauls of Medicaid and the penal code but its not enough to off-set end of federal stimulus funds and the use of other non-recurring revenue like debt restructuring. There are many challenges ahead as we look at the governors proposed budget which includes an 8.4 percent proposed for most state agencies. State agencies have already dealt with 25-30 percent cuts.

The days and nights will get even busier as we head into our next 30 days and I will continue to keep you informed of our progress. If you want to keep up with legislative action on bills of interest to you log onto the legislative Research Commission website at www.lrc.ky.gov or call the LRC toll free Bill Status Line at 866-840-2835.

Stolen car recovered, but turkey missing

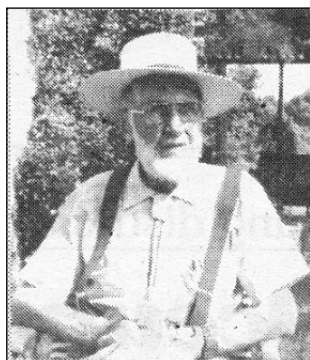

Originally published in the March 1, 1962 issue of The Casey County News

A stolen car and a stolen turkey figured into the same case this week, and three men faced charges of one kind or another in the matter.

Deputy Sheriff Shirley Carman followed what he described as a well marked trail down Johnny Creek for four miles and discovered three men in a stolen car.

Carman said the little used road was well marked as the car headed from one ditch to another and back into the road. Johnny Creek runs approximately from near the home of Lawrence Brock at Poplar Hill to Gilpin. The upper end of the road is little used.

day night -- a 1958 Buick. It had not been missed Sunday afternoon when Deputy Carman found it.

The turkey came into the deal in a round-about manner. Audie Buis said Sunday night that earlier in the day two men had offered him $5 for a large gobbler, but he would not sell because it was Sunday. Later in the day the gobbler was missing.

Officers found an ample supply of turkey feathers in the Buick after it had been taken. Carman said he had reason to believe the feathers belonged to the turkey missing from the Buis home.

All three men were charged with being publicly drunk.

One of the men admitted taking the car from Beard Implement Co.

The gobbler is still missing. Buis said he would recognize him if he were found.

2012 Rogers Explorers bringing new session to Morehead State

More middle school students in southern and eastern Kentucky than ever before will be able to experience life on a college campus this summer—all while pursuing their math, science, and technology skills—through The Center for Rural Development's Rogers Explorers youth leadership program.

The Center is expanding this year's Rogers Explorers program to include an additional summer session from July 22-24 on the campus of Morehead State University in Rowan County.

The additional host site will allow a record 120 rising ninth-grade students to attend one of four Rogers Explorers summer sessions and start their journey toward building careers in some of the region's top in-demand fields.

Other 2012 Rogers Explorers sessions are scheduled for:

- June 3-5, Lindsey Wilson College, Columbia
- June 6-8, University of the Cumberlands, Williamsburg
- July 18-20, Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond

Current eighth-grade students from within The Center's 42-county primary service area, which includes Casey County, are eligible to apply for Rogers Explorers. Applications for the 2012 Rogers Explorers summer sessions at all four participating college campuses will be accepted through March 21.

For more information on Rogers Explorers, call 606-677-6000, or download an application online at <http://crdev.us/explorers2012>.

All application forms must be printed, completed, postmarked and mailed to The Center, 2292 South U.S. 27, Suite 300, Somerset, Ky., by the March 21 deadline.

Rogers Explorers spend three days and two nights on campus at the colleges and universities, where experts guide participants in hands-on assignments, all of which encourage creative thinking and teamwork and build leadership skills.

Thirty students will be selected to attend each of the four 2012 Rogers Explorers summer sessions. All lodging, meals, and program expenses (with the exception of transportation to and from the campus host site) are provided free of charge to participating students.

They were judged by a three-member Lindsey Wilson faculty and staff panel and also by audience input.

teach kids the relationship between money and measurement and I told her it would be neat to lay out a quarter mile of pennies to show measurements and fractions," Beeler said.

Beeler and her staff got busy rounding up the 21,120 pennies that it would take to lay out that distance.

Bank staff enclosed the rows of pennies in scotch tape and then laid them out in rows on the LES gym floor.

Wesley said that LES teachers wanted to tie in money skills and facts with the new standards on which students are being taught and tested.

In addition, every department at LES — from social studies to math to art — got to suggest ways that students could learn about money.

"We related it to health, exercise, math, and history. One student made a Power Point presentation on the stock market," Wesley said.

Students in art classes got to design their own dollar bills while other students wrote their dreams if they had a money tree.

In response to the phrase "If money grew on trees," a student named Justin wrote that his life would be so much better.

"Like I would give my Mom five dollars to leave me alone — that would be cool," he wrote.

To relate the project to physical education, classes took turns walking between the rows of pennies.

Not only did a community business work with students in the school, they also found a way to involve parents in teaching their kids about money.

Parents were invited to the school during the morning of the event to interact with their children in learning about money.

"During the parent meeting, we gave them a cup with play money so they could practice counting change with the kids. It's so important for the parents to be involved," Wesley said.

Beeler said that it's also important for kids to know about money.

"I can't emphasize enough the importance of financial literacy. Students aren't really taught money management and they've got to know about money," Beeler said.

In addition to furnishing the pennies for the event, MBC — along with Casey County Bank — gave away several passbook savings accounts.

Lady Rebels beat Somerset to advance in district tourney

By Rita "Peat" Harris
Sports Correspondent

The Lady Rebels advanced to the District 47 championship game with a two-point victory over the Somerset Lady Briar Jumpers, 46-44, on Monday night.

Head Coach Randy Salyers knew what his number 1 seeded team needed to do to make it through their first game of the tournament before even setting foot on the court.

"I really felt like if we got up to 30 or 40 (points) and kept them down (to 30 or 40) we really had a shot," said Salyers, who had his team prepping to face Somerset, the number 4 seed, for several weeks.

Starting the game with the lead set Casey on the path to victory; however, Somerset stayed close on their heels throughout and trailed only by one heading into the half, 22-21.

"Early on we hit some threes to get a really good start," Salyers stated. "We kept control of the game the whole game."

The Lady Rebels stretched the lead to five in the third quarter, but Somerset battled for a comeback in the final period. Casey maintained their two-possession lead until just over three minutes left in the game when free throws and an inside basket brought the Lady Briar Jumpers within a point, 36-35.

Defensive pressure by both teams increased, which also drew fouls and trade off trips to the free throw line.

Somerset's Edwards picked up three fouls in a matter of 21 seconds of play. The effort appeared to pay off when she picked off a steal on the next inbounds pass and drove the court for two points. However, she drew her final foul in the following play, sending her to the bench and Casey's Jasmine Johnson to the free throw line. Johnson drained her shots, giving Casey a 3-point lead with 1:29 to play.

Casey was unable to extend the lead by more than three points until only 7.4 seconds remained on the clock. With the comfort of a two possession lead, the Lady Rebels refrained from fouling their opponent during the Lady Briar Jumpers' final possession. A last second basket by Somerset brought the final score to 46-44.

"We made mistakes but we played with a lot of heart," said Salyers.

The Rebels closed their regular season play Friday with a 38-point loss to the Lincoln County Patriots. The 69-31 defeat brought their regular season record to 3-26.

"Lincoln County has got a team that's got a chance to win the (12th) Region (championship)," said Head Coach Darryl Burkett. "To hold them to 69, that's pretty good."

Casey senior Luke Carman put the first two points on the board and the Rebels held the lead for the next two minutes of play. However, Lincoln put up three consecutive 3-point baskets to which Casey did not respond.

It was over two minutes into the second quarter before the Rebels broke an 18-point streak by Lincoln. Baylen Hill drained a three and brought the score to 21-7.

Hill scored a second trey for Casey along with inside shots from Carman and Micah Smith but Lincoln's shots did not stop. The Patriots drained four more from behind the arch in addition to inside shots before the half closed with Casey trailing 35-14.

The threes continued to fall for Lincoln in the second half and their lead only extended despite Casey's shot attempts.

"We made 11 field goals the whole game," said Burkett. "We had two bad shots all night. We took good shots, they just didn't go in."

Lincoln County tallied 48 of their 69 points from 3-point shots alone. The Patriots had six athletes contribute to the 16 3-point baskets and nine point contributors overall.

Hill led the Rebels in scoring with 9, followed by Carman with 5.

imagined. The only thing that could have made it better would be to (have played)," Pittman told me after the game.

In addition to one Lady Rebel senior's special night, all three Rebel seniors started their final home game and all three put points on the board for Casey. The cheerleaders, home from nationals, performed their routine for the home crowd one final time while the dance team, decked in their always-fun attire brought liveliness to the halftime breaks. The pep band filled the time outs with spirit and the gymnasium was full of support for this 2011-12 wrap-up.

Anyone who exposes themselves to high school athletics knows the road the student athlete travels is not an easy one. In addition to the responsibilities of any other high school student, athletes — whether it be ball players, cheerleaders, band members or dance team members — spend hours upon hours dedicated to their sport, gaining attributes that become a major part of themselves.

One night's losses fall far short of reflecting the careers these athletes experienced and the numerous victories achieved. The main wins, of course, are never measured on a scoreboard or by judges. They aren't even historically recorded for that matter. There is no doubt, though, that triumph has occurred for those 16 and it will carry each of them into the next level of their respective journeys.

coln created a void too wide for Casey to overcome. Lincoln had more than double Casey's points at the half, 33-16. The nail in coffin was the 24-11 point scoring difference in the third quarter.

Tiara Cochran lead the Lady Rebel scoring with eight points, followed by Lakken Miller with seven.

Lincoln County

Casey County fell 65-35 to the Lincoln County Lady Patriots to close out their regular season, a team they lost to by only three points earlier this season.

The Lady Rebels could not compete with Lincoln's hot shooting on Friday. Lincoln shot 67 percent from the field compared to Casey's 25 percent.

The Lady Patriots were led by Emily Fox who drained six of her seven 3-point attempts, and finished with 25 points.

"Fox hit three (3-pointers) in the first quarter," said Salyers. "We haven't shot well for a while. Without that inside presence it's tough to get shots off."

Despite Fox's shooting in the opening period, it was the second quarter when Lin-

Nelson County

The Nelson County Lady Cardinals took a vengeance on the Lady Rebels Thursday. Casey County was defeated 75-52 to the team they beat by 10 points earlier this season.

"We were in the game early but started to wear down," said Salyers.

The Lady Rebels trailed in the first quarter by only five. It was the second quarter when Nelson County put a halt to Casey's baskets, outscoring them 19-8 and finishing the half 40-24.

"It's the hardest we've played in a while," said Salyers.

Casey's 52 points were a team effort with 11 Lady Rebels contributing to the total score. Johnson led with 11 points.
